

Self-reflection Statement

The project started out well with finding a good topic and meeting my group members. After a few weeks one of the members quit the study, so she couldn't help us anymore, her name is Bercemsu. We understood her decision and then moved on. After this the project went fine until the last draft deadline and ever since then I tried to contact the group to meet and finish the paper. Utku sometimes responded, but he had a lot of work and other courses and at the end he could not contribute to the final product after the draft. Similarly, I also reached out to Deniz many times throughout the weeks leading up to the deadline, but he still to this day has not responded to me, so I had to remove for example his coding analysis because I did not know how he got the results. Utku says he will disenroll from our group, and he will try again next year. So, this was an interesting process, nevertheless I feel like I made a very good project paper despite these conditions. I also acknowledge that some of the work that was done by my group mates is still in the final version, but since this is maximum around 500 words, I decided to not include their names, I asked Utku he did not want his name on the paper. For AI, I used it sometimes to summarize articles or to help with the coding part of the paper, also for generating ideas in the beginning.
